BLUES IN DISGUISE TAKES ON MUDDY WATERS' CLASSIC 'HOOCHIE COOCHIE MAN'

TRENTON, N.J. – After visiting TJ Nix, Paul Plumeri, and Blues in Disguise at their rehearsal space and sound check, LNF PRO now takes us to the long-awaited sold-out performance at Trenton's Patriots Theater at the War Memorial.

Video clip number three is a live performance of Blues in Disguise covering the Muddy Waters classic "Hoochie Coochie Man." Though Blues in Disguise prides itself on its original work, "Hoochie Coochie Man" is one of its standards and performed in homage to Muddy Waters.

"Muddy moves me," said Nix. "If it were not for the likes of the greats like Muddy I would not be doing what I do today. I still play along to those old albums like a school boy. It makes me feel alive.

"I like to think that all the old blues artists of past are channeling their creations through us. After all, if we did not have their original concepts, we would have nothing to expand on. There must be a higher power out there to be blessed with players like Paul and this group of musicians that truly have a passion for keeping the art of playing the blues alive."

LNF PRO's Joseph Cap filmed the band's entire set that evening, and more live footage will follow in the remaining four video shorts.

The additional video clips will be released via www.bluesindisguise.com in the coming weeks.

The debut album from Blues in Disguise is available on Poolhouse Records (distributed in North America by MRI/RED Distribution).

Combining tried and true blues classics with a blues-jam synthesis (think Muddy Waters meets the Allmans), Blues in Disguise delivers all around. When Nix's hard-charging harmonica attack meets Plumeri's incredible guitar presence, it's clear that Blues in Disguise means business.

Blues in Disguise is rounded out by members Angelo DiBraccio (sax), Nick Hutton (acoustic guitar), Jerry Monk (bass), and Michael White (drums).
